BY REQUEST.

Senator Edmunds on the Whisky Tax [From the New York Evening Post, Dem.]

Senate Chamber, Washington, July 21, 1888 .- Dear Sir: I have yours of the 12th instant. I have not endeavored to verify the quotation you make from what is represented to have been my remarks in 1868 on the subject of the whisky tax, but I will assume the quotations to be correct, and to be fair in the sense of quoting enough to show the whole scope of my position; and I adhere in letter and spirit to the proposition I am represented to have said down, At the same time and as I think in entire consistence with all I then maintained, and still believe, I am in favor of the total abolition of the whole internal revenue system, with its army of spies, and office holders, and political bummers, and thus relieving the people from a nuisance in the way of administration and from a taxation which we all know [(whatever dispute there may be about who bears the principal weight of the customs duties) is a tax upon the people of the United States, and I include whisky in this abelition for the reason that it cannot remain under taxation without the some army of office holders and without really army of omee holders and what teamy aiding, as it now does largely, whisky interests and whisky trusts rather than discouraging them. I desire that whatever revenue is obtained from liquor and the liquor traffic shall be obtained by the States themselves and go directly into their treasuries for the building of prisons for violators of the law, and providing for those—as the States only may—whom the evils of the liquor traffic have made homeless and deso-late. I believe that the cause of temper ance and probibition will be largely promo-ted by dissolving all connection of the Government of the United States with that sor of business, and thus stimulating the States themselves to deal with it in their own independent way, as a question of social econ omy and social morals, and in this opinion I am austained by a very large and rapidly increasing number of the most sincere, letel-ligent and active prohibitionists of the country. And so I think it is only to be regretted that the present state of the expenditures of the Government is such as to probably require a retention of the whole or some part of the internal revenue system as it relates to the liquor traffic. It is perfectly well known here that the great whisky combination of the country has been operating for a long time to retain the whisky tax and the Government protection of its manufactures and I am sure that you will agree with me in believing as all human experience has proved in such cases, that the turning the whole matter over to the States will not make whisky any freer than it is now, either in price or quantity. i do not usually reply to letters on quasipolitical subjects, written by strangers, but your letter is so evidently that of an earnest and honest man that it gives me pleasure to answer you with entire candor and earnestness. In haste, very respectfully yours, GEORGE F. EDMUNDS. Cassius Carter, esq., San Diego, Cal.

1. T. CREIGHTON & SON. is a recurrence to the shapes in vogue five or six years ago. The English makes are running to small hats, with taper crowns. They are either cedar, black, tan, or sealbrown in color.

The most fashionable of English black hats seem little at a first glance. They are a trifle fuller in the crown than those worn a year ago, but the curl of the brim, so dear to the hearts of the ultra-fashionable, re-mains the same. The domestic hats have a full round crown, with a heavy curl to the rim, and they are built in three different heights. As regards colors they are similar to the London shades, with this addition-a check, the red, and the black.

The season for straws is well nigh at an end. To meet the demands of those who want something elegant, but in direct contrast to the stiff derby, hatters have put on the market a class of soft goods which are sure to prove very popular. They are of cloth, in checks and plain goods. The crowns are round and square to suit the varied tastes of the many people who travel on steamboats and railway trains.

The "Tyrolian" is a soft hat, and the sale of them thus far has been very large. They are something on the Alpine order .- N. Y. Evening Sun.
